A MESSAGE FROM FR. STEVE

Come Encounter Jesus

This Saturday (February 9th), we will have our next Healing Encounter. It is a time of praise, worship, prayer, and adoration from 7:00 to 9:00 p.m. in the church. Prayer teams will be available to pray for healing and other requests. Come, and invite someone to join you.

Bishop Robert Barron's Article "The Internet and Satan's Game."

Last weekend, in the context of my homily that focused on I Corinthians 13, I read from Bishop Barron's recent article that focused on the infamous incident at the Lincoln Memorial between Covington Catholic High School boys, Native American demonstrators, and Black Nationalists. The analytic power of Bishop Barron's piece centered on the powerful thought of René Girard. I think it is worth including here, in print, some excerpts from his article:

... my mind turned, as it often does today, to René Girard. The great Franco-American philosopher and social commentator is best known for his speculations on what he called the scapegoating mechanism. Sadly, Girard maintained, most human communities, from the coffee klatch to the nation state, are predicated upon this dysfunctional and deeply destructive instinct. Roughly speaking, it unfolds as follows. When tensions arise in a group (as they inevitably do), people commence to cast about for a scapegoat, for someone or some group to blame. Deeply attractive, even addictive, the scapegoating move rapidly attracts a crowd, which in short order becomes a mob. In their common hatred of the victim, the blamers feel an ersatz sense of togetherness. Filled with the excitement born of self-righteousness, the mob then endeavors to isolate and finally eliminate the scapegoat, convinced that this will restore order to their roiled society. At the risk of succumbing to the reductio ad Hitlerum fallacy, nowhere is the Girardian more evident than in the Germany of the 1930s. Hitler ingeniously exploited the scapegoating mechanism to bring his country together—obviously in a profoundly wicked way.

Girard's theory was grounded in his studies of Shakespeare, Dostoevsky, and other literary figures, but his profoundest influence was the Bible, which not only identified the problem, but showed the way forward. Take a good, long look at the story of the Woman Caught in Adultery in the eighth chapter of John's Gospel to see what Girard saw regarding both the sin and the solution. It is surely telling that one of the principal names for the devil in the New Testament is ho Satanas, which carries the sense of the accuser. And how significant, thought Girard, that it is precisely ho Satanas who offers all of the kingdoms of the world to Jesus, implying that all forms of human community are tainted, at least to a large degree, by the characteristically Satanic game of accusation, blaming, scapegoating.

Bishop Barron's Recommendations about Social Media

Here is his concluding paragraph, which, as I said in my homily, contains very good, if challenging, advice:

A few weeks ago, the Wall Street Journal published a piece on me and my work. The author referred to me as "the Bishop of the Internet," a title which I find more than a little strange. But for the moment, I'm going to claim it, only so I can make a pastoral pronouncement to all those who use social media. When you're about to make a comment, ask yourself a very simple question: "Am I doing this out of love, out of a sincere wish for the good of the person or persons I'm addressing?" If not, shut up. If it becomes clear that your comment is simply spleen-venting, scapegoating, or virtue-signaling, shut up. The internet can be a marvelous tool, and it can be a weapon used for Satanic purposes. Applying the test of love can very effectively undermine the scapegoating mechanism and drive the devil out.

Lumen Veritatis February 16

Our next Lumen Veritatis lecture will be held this Saturday (February 16) at 7:30 in Mercy Hall (127 Rumsey). The evening begins with fellowship at 7:00 p.m., followed by a talk, questions & answers, and more fellowship. This month's Lumen Veritatis lecture is entitled, "Thomas Aquinas: An Anthropology of Human Sexuality." Our speaker is Fr. Thomas Petri, O.P., who is Vice President and Academic Dean of the Pontifical Faculty of the Immaculate Conception in Washington, D.C. I met Fr. Petri at Mundelein Seminary, where he was, at that time, studying for the Diocese of Owensboro, Kentucky. He later joined the Dominicans, and was ordained a priest in 2009. I look forward to seeing Fr. Petri, and hearing his lecture. Join us if you're free.

Prayer for Vocations

Today in the Gospel, Jesus calls Peter, James, and John to come after him, and Jesus tells them he will make them "fishers of men." Vocations to the priesthood and consecrated life flow from lives of faith in homes, like yours. It is my daily prayer that all homes in our parish will be filled with rich spiritual soil in which the call of God can be heard and followed. May we foster vocations and respond to the call of God in our lives.

With gratitude for the gift of my priesthood,

Fr. Steve

Please refrain from the use of chewing gum while in the church. Our volunteer cleaning crew has had to scrape gum from the carpet and pews. If you must bring snack items to Mass for your little children, we ask you take the time to pick up anything that may have fallen out of their tiny hands. These items become ground into the carpet as people inadvertently walk on them. This is not only our place of worship; it is the Lord's House. Let us each do our part to keep it tidy. Thank you
