Follow-up from Last Week's Homily

Last weekend, I preached about the difficult words in the Gospel, regarding the Lord's demand that we love God more than anyone, even our closest family members. It's a difficult teaching, as I said repeatedly. Given what has happened in the culture regarding changing of sexual values and behavior, it is increasingly common for family members to reject the Church's teaching about matters sexual. Premarital sex, masturbation, cohabitation, same-sex relationships, even same-sex marriage. These things demand of us a choice in terms of how we will respond. The key for us with all of those we love is to love them with the love the God has for them and for us. It's not a sentimental love, but one that is, as St. Thomas Aquinas says, defined as follows: "Love is the effective willing of the true good of the other as other." For those who might have missed my homily, I go into an explanation of what that means. We love with an end in view, which is the true good of the other. We can be tempted to "go along to get along" and not to make people feel bad, but I shared two quotes from Prefects of the Congregation for the Doctrine of the Faith (CDF) regarding especially ministry to homosexual persons, but they are equally applicable to any manifest area of sin that family members might be practicing. I offer these to you for your prayerful reflection.

But we wish to make it clear that departure from the Church's teaching, or silence about it, in an effort to provide pastoral care is neither caring nor pastoral. Only what is true can ultimately be pastoral. The neglect of the Church's position prevents homosexual men and women from receiving the care they need and deserve. On the Pastoral Care of Homosexual Persons (Joseph Cardinal Ratzinger, October 1, 1986, Prefect of CDF)

At the same time, the Church recalls that God Himself never ceases to bless each of His pilgrim children in this world, because for Him "we are more important to God than all of the sins that we can commit"[12]. But he does not and cannot bless sin: he blesses sinful man, so that he may recognize that he is part of his plan of love and allow himself to be changed by him. He in fact "takes us as we are, but never leaves us as we are"[13]. For the above mentioned reasons, the Church does not have, and cannot have, the power to bless unions of persons of the same sex in the sense intended above.

(Cardinal Ladaria, February 22, 2021, Prefect of CDF)

I find these two excerpts helpful as I think about my own job of forming and teaching, and I think they are applicable to family members, as well, as they deal with the increasing incidence of Catholics making choices that deviate markedly from the clear teachings of the Church. We must, as I said last weekend, side with Christ if it comes down to it. And we must share, always with clarity and charity, why we cannot approve of their choices. We still love them, but we love them too much to approve of behavior or actions that God calls sin. We cannot condone the behavior or overlook it, if we really love them. This is difficult, to be sure, but that is what the Lord demands. Here again is the Gospel from last weekend, with the three prior verses that I included in my homily:

Do not think that I have come to bring peace upon the earth. I have come to bring not peace but the sword. For I have come to set a man 'against his father, a daughter against her mother, and a daughter-in-law against her mother-in-law; and one's enemies will be those of his household.' "Whoever loves father or mother more than me is not worthy of me, and whoever loves son or daughter more than me is not worthy of me; and whoever does not take up his cross and follow after me is not worthy of me. Whoever finds his life will lose it, and whoever loses his life for my sake will find it. (Matthew 10:34-39). This difficult teaching is a call to us to trust and love the Lord, and to help others know the truth we find in Christ, come what may. Come whatever may.

Some Time Away

Beginning Monday, July 10, after Mass, I'm going to be away, heading north to Copper Harbor, as is my wont. I'll be gone next weekend, and will return in time for the evening Mass on July 19. I was able to get coverage for most Masses and confession times. Please note that the following Mass and Confession times will be canceled while I'm gone:

- Confessions and Benediction Friday evening July 14 (Adoration that day will also be canceled.)
- Confessions and Mass Monday, July 17.

A Question About Relics

Every so often, someone asks me what relics we have in the altar, and I've been meaning to share the information with you. This is the list I have: St. Andrew the Apostle; St. Sebastian the Martyr; St. Januarius; Bishop & Martyr; St. Blaise, Bishop & Martyr; St. Agnes, Virgin Martyr; St. Agatha, Virgin Martyr; St. Mark, Evangelist; and St. Matthew, Apostle & Evangelist. That's quite a list. Holy Saints, pray for us!

With requests for the intercession of these saints,

Father Steve
