Please plan to attend and bring your family, friends, and neighbors too. The Second Annual Family Talent Show will be held Saturday at 3:30 p.m. under the tent. The program will be concluded in time for those who attend to go to Mass at 5:00 p.m.

Interested in learning more about the Catholic Church (RCIA)?

Each fall, as we begin a new season of learning, we also begin programming for those who are interested in learning more about the Catholic faith. This year, Greg Ingle will be teaching classes for adults as well as high school students who are interested in learning more and potentially becoming Catholics at the Easter Vigil in the spring. Details about the RCIA class times will be finalized soon, but the plan at this point is to meet on Sunday mornings at 9:00 a.m. (RCIA stands for the Rite of Christian Initiation of Adults.) You can email Greg Ingle by email at RCIA@corlansing.org. Feel free to call the parish office for more information (517.482.4749), and ask for Debbie McPherson who is the office contact for RCIA this year.

Crosses—freely taken up

This Sunday, Jesus gives a difficult word to St. Peter (and to each and every one of us): "Whoever wishes to come after me must deny himself, take up his cross, and follow me." It's a challenging word, but thankfully, the Lord Himself invites us also to come to Him when we are burdened and heavy-laden. He is walking by our side, always, and invites us to share our hearts with Him, as He shares His heart with us.

Follow-up to Last Sunday

At a couple of the Masses last weekend, I referenced St. John Henry Newman's Essay on the Development of Christian Doctrine. Many of us may be hearing things about the upcoming Synod on Synodality. Not a few of us may be concerned about what could happen.

As I reiterated Sunday, we need to remember that Jesus always said to his disciples, "Do not be afraid." He says the same thing to us today. As we must about the upcoming Synod, it is wise to recall that not all changes that are proposed are "developments," but some of them are what St. John Henry calls "corruptions." Here are some reflections on how to determine what changes are authentic developments, and which could be "corruptions" of the "modernist" kind today, such as those I referenced on Sunday. St. John Henry Newman tells us to look at any proposed changes in light of what he calls "seven notes" of a "genuine development of Christian doctrine" as contrasted with a "corruption." The seven notes are the following: 1) preservation of type, 2) continuity of principles, 3) power of assimilation, 4) logical sequence, 5) anticipation of its future, 6) conservation of the past, and 7) chronic vigor. His point is that genuine developments never radically change what has gone before, but are always in natural (and supernatural) continuity with what has gone before. In light of proposals at the Synod that seem to call for radical change, I find Newman's short description of the seventh note very helpful: We have arrived at length at the seventh and last test, which was laid down when we started, for distinguishing the true development of an idea from its corruptions and perversions: it is this. A corruption, if vigorous, is of brief duration, runs itself out quickly, and ends in death; on the other hand, if it lasts, it fails in vigor and passes into a decay. This general law gives us additional assistance in determining the character of the developments of Christianity commonly called Catholic. In other words, even if what he would consider corruptions are approved by the Synod on Synodality, Newman's reading of history tells him that they will not last. And, if they do last, they will eventually die out, because the Lord's promise holds: "I have yet many things to say to you, but you cannot bear them now. When the Spirit of truth comes, he will guide you into all the truth; for he will not speak on his own authority, but whatever he hears he will speak, and he will declare to you the things that are to come" (John 16:12-13). This promise is not made to me or to you, but to the Church as a whole. Come, Holy Spirit, guide us into all truth!

With great love for the tradition we've received,

Fr. Steve
